Sharpless' RFU names new boss Amanda Cross is delighted to be managing director of rugby at the English Institute of Sport Amanda Cross is delighted to be managing director of rugby at the English Institute of Sport Amanda Cross was appointed managing director of rugby at the English Institute of Sport at the start of the new academic year, with ambitions to increase the performance of the Bath Rugby Academy and create a Rugby Olympic Village. Miss Cross has worked with the RFU and its constituent bodies for the past 10 years, spending the majority of that time with the RFU within the senior playing management group. In that role she has seen the RFU make significant changes to the pathway for academy players. "She is a fantastic person and has an impressive CV, which means she has fantastic relationships within the game and within the RFU. "I want to build on the successful work that Emma and her predecessor Paul Simpson have done on the pathway. We want to inspire young people to play rugby and we want to create more opportunities for those who are already playing, as well as those who are thinking about it. "This is a vision that we are very much behind and working in tandem with Bath Rugby to make happen. "A big part of this has been working with the Bath Rugby Academy and some of their staff, who are an outstanding group of people and the best in the country. "Our vision is to make sure that their academy players move into the senior ranks either into Bath or Bath's sister clubs," she added. Miss Cross also said she was very excited to head up the RFU's Sport England-backed REaD programme, which aims to grow the game for more women and girls. "It is something which I have been very active in over the past few years and very much want to see succeed,
